Overview

Can businesses contribute to the SDGs?

No matter how large or small, and regardless of their industry, all companies can contribute to the SDGs. While the scale and scope of the global goals is unprecedented, the fundamental ways that business can contribute remain unchanged.

How far away is the world from achieving the SDGs?

The SDG-Tracker highlights that the world is currently (early 2019) very far away from achieving the goals. The Global SDG Index and Dashboards Report is the first publication to track countries' performance on all 17 Sustainable Development Goals.

What are the SDGs & why should we care?

SDG 2: The detrimental effects of hunger and malnutrition that can arise from systemic challenges with food security are enormous. The World Health Organization estimates that 12.9 percent of the population in developing countries is undernourished. SDG 4 and 5: Educational equity has yet to be reached in the world.

Can Canada achieve the SDGs?

Canada has made progress to achieve the SDGs, but we know there is more work to do. We will continue to build on this progress, and work to improve the lives of Canadians, and millions of people around the world.

Are the SDGs integrated?

The SDGs are integrated —that is, they recognize that action in one area will affect outcomes in others, and that development must balance social, economic and environmental sustainability. Through the pledge to Leave No One Behind, countries have committed to fast-track progress for those furthest behind first.

What are SDGs 1 to 6?

SDGs 1 to 6 directly address health disparities, primarily in developing countries. These six goals address key issues in global public health, poverty, hunger and food security, health, education, gender equality and women's empowerment, as well as water and sanitation.
