Is getting solar energy free

Overview

How to avoid burning a hole in your pocketbook and protect yourself from consumer scams about free solar panels.

The Department of Energy is aware of claims of offers for free solar panels or that solar companies must provide solar panels for free if requested. However, the federal government does not offer any programs for free home solar panel installations nor does the government.

Over recent years, solar energy has seen a rise in interest as more Americans learn of its immense cost-saving and carbon-cutting potential. Through our solar office, the U.S. Department of Energy (DOE) offers several programs to help consumers lower the cost of solar.

The US government is not giving away free solar panels or paying people to go solar, no matter how many random YouTube and Facebook ads say otherwise. This scam is usually a misrepresentation of the Residential Clean Energy Credit (aka solar tax credit).

When something is advertised as “free,” it usually comes with a few strings attached—free solar panels are no exception. Companies that offer “free” solar panels are typically offering solar lease agreements, so you can reap the benefits of solar-powered electricity without dealing with the upkeep.

While free solar panels may seem like a great deal, in almost every case we can think of, they aren’t actually free. Instead, the “free” equipment comes with hidden costs and caveats, and it’s your responsibility to research and understand the actual cost of these “free” panels before committing to.

Going solar through a company making "free solar" claims could instead reduce your long-term return on solar panels and, perhaps worse, sour you on the idea of clean energy altogether. "No-cost solar" offers usually refer to solar leases or power purchase agreements (PPAs). Under these agreements.

Advertising "free solar panels from the government" is one of the most common scams in the solar industry and has increased in prominence since the federal solar tax credit was increased and extended in August 2022. However, amidst the numerous bad actors misleading the public, there are also a.
